

I hope that this is never allowed onboard an aircraft. I already have enough issues with passengers not listening to instructions - I can't even imagine having passengers on cell phones as well. I think it is rude being on a cell phone at a restaurant, store or any other inappropriate place. Now take all those people and put them in an airplane and on the phone - NO WAY! What rights do the rest of the passengers have? How about the passengers who want to rest after traveling from China or Australia. If I were a passenger who wanted to rest, and now I have this LOUD cell phone talker next to me, what do you think my reaction is going to be? There will be confrontations! We already have too many issues with people's children making noise and seat backs reclining.
